

Heinz Stoewer: Picture "Red invasion" (2022)

This abstract painting is characterized by the contrast between stillness and movement, with the movement of the red rivers and swirls dominating. The different shapes and combinations of the red elements give free rein to the viewer's imagination. You will always discover something new in the paintings! The red tones vary from very light vermillion to dark red and then partially dissolve into pink, which merges into the light beige areas. A powerful picture that requires some space to take effect. In addition to acrylic paint, sand has also been worked into the painting, creating an interesting materiality.
