

Ralf Kunstmann: Picture "Balloons" (1993)

€15,000.00

This is one of my few large formats that I painted in 1993 and which has been published many times since then. In the 1990s I was a freelance writer for one of the leading airbrush magazines. I gave courses in which I passed on my knowledge and documented the creation process of my works. I also tested airbrush paints in collaboration with the laboratory of one of the leading German manufacturers of artists' paints. For this motif, I was inspired by the American photorealists, who were then and probably still are considered the best painters of photorealism. These works still inspire me, although I have developed my own style in the meantime. The picture is framed in a gray shadow gap frame, which shows slight signs of wear due to the exhibitions.
