

Heinz Stoewer: Picture "Impermanence of beauty" (2020)

On a white background float abstracted petals, which are indicated by colored lines and colored areas. Through the colors used reveals that the flowers are no longer fresh, but they are already in the process of withering. Although the painterly representation is light and colorful, it creates its own, somewhat melancholic mood. In this work, the artist deals with the transience of beauty both in nature and in man. The work is signed and dated on the reverse.
