

Michael Krähmer: Picture "Reflexes IV" (2007)

€3,800.00

A rocky headland juts out into the sun-drenched sea, creating delicate reflections on the petroleum-colored water surface, under which on the seabed the light network of the sun's reflections can be seen. The oil painting breathes the peaceful mood of a warm late summer day by the sea. The painting is painted in the time-consuming resin oil glazing technique of the old masters. Transparent oil paint mixed with dissolved resin is glazed with a brush in many very thin layers on top of each other, creating shimmering, almost three-dimensional color spaces. The creation of such a painting takes up to a month. It is framed with a black shadow gap frame with silver edge
