

Kirsten Treis: Picture "Pond 4" (2013)

€500.00

The botanical garden is located in the middle of the city. It is attached to a castle with a moat. When the children were small, I loved going there with them. There was always something to discover: Newts in the bog area, lizards on the dry rocks, fish in the castle moat, turtles bathing in the sun and, with a bit of luck, even iguanas in the greenhouses. Even now, I still like to drop by for a visit. This has resulted in one or two pictures of motifs in the botanical garden. In this series, however, the focus is not on colorful exotic flowers, but on aging water lily leaves in autumn. A beauty all of their own. Water lily leaves in the fall. Signed and dated.
