

Alina Kloka: Picture "Sample" (2023)

€1,000.00

All laws, the universe and our world follow certain laws and patterns. Scientists have discovered a surprising similarity between the structure of the brain and the universe. In her painting "Patterns", Alina Kloka suggests that the lines that connect us all are imperceptible to the naked eye, but nevertheless exist and connect everything in this world - absolutely everything. It is not necessary that we can see them, but it is important that we are aware of their existence and use this knowledge if we want to bring something positive into the world. We do not have the power to change others; we can only change our own thoughts and feelings. This in turn will affect the overall picture and pattern of our reality through these invisible lines.
