

Carola_X: Picture "P.O.W.E.R. instead of dolls" (1900)

€3,200.00

CLASS WOMEN DON'T HAVE TO EXPLAIN ANYTHING!

She just sits there with her curlers. Made up, bored or pensive. Who is this woman? Suburban chick or successful activist?

When feminism and curlers are mutually exclusive, women are trapped - and not just these ...

Who actually says what is authentic and who is free? Self-confidence is the healthy knowledge of the "I am I".

Our pigeonhole thinking reaches its limits in Carola X's portraits of women. The striking green and yellow X is once again a statement: This is how it is! And who wants to tell me where I belong!

The interrupted lines, the intense coloration, the powerful brushstroke, the flowing color structures, the fine and coarse textures underline the statement beyond the norm. It is simply not clear who this woman is if she does not fit into any category.
