

Christin Lutze: Picture "Tuscany view" (2024)

Influenced by a trip to Italy, the artist shows a path that leads to a southern room and a town in Tuscany. The space is theoretically walkable, but the perspectives are distorted and unreal. The soft and luminous colors with delicate warm and earthy tones make this work very harmonious. The viewer is literally drawn into the room and can take their own path and simply drift along, finding their own destination and dreaming of their final journey.
