

Karin Döring: Picture "LICHTGESTALT XXXI [31]" (2025)

Medium: acrylic, relief structure, gilding with 24-carat gold leaf. The XXXI [31] work in the LICHTGESTALT series shows the powerful asana Ustrasana, also known as the camel. Ustrasana stands for the opening of the heart and the release of inner blockages. The pose promotes courage, trust and the ability to face life with open arms. With dynamic structures and the radiance of 24-carat gold, I capture the energy of this pose and make it tangible. I symbolize devotion and transformation in the soft, flowing movements of the work. This work of art is an energy carrier that fills the room with light, hope and inner strength. It invites you to pause, take a deep breath and feel the power within yourself. Each LICHTGESTALT is a unique piece.
