Ulla Kutter:
Picture "Down by the river" (2024)

I love going for walks along the Elbe, everyone in my city of Hamburg does - whatever the weather. In this case, the sun is shining beautifully across the river. A man takes a photo with his smartphone. The light is extremely strong, creating a silhouette-like, dramatic look. Although the picture is in neutral colors, there are small dots of color in the waves. The structure of the floor is another highlight of the picture. Each stone of the paving has a different design. This picture is painted on a colored primer on wood, the structure of the wood and the traces of the primer are slightly visible. The primer is vanilla-colored, and determines the sunny atmosphere of the painting.
