

su sea: Picture "Die Badende XI - time to grow together" (2024)

The "Bathers" series depicts self-confident and strong women in bathing suits in Pop Art style. At first glance, the viewer only recognizes the colourfully depicted bathing scene. On closer inspection, a further socio-critical theme emerges, such as an ecological issue or a reference to a political or social topic of current affairs. The title "time to grow together" refers to the important theme of nature and humanity growing together. In this work, this wish is symbolically represented by the flora growing out of the swimsuit onto the skin of the bathers. The idea is the protection of nature and respect for creation and the urgent need to harmonize ecology and economy. For the mixed media work I used acrylic paint, graphite, oil pastels, plastic masses and tissue paper.
