

Karin Döring: Picture "JOEL" (2024)

The artwork 'Joël' is a portrait that captures the innocent curiosity and pure fascination of a child. His eyes reflect the boundless curiosity with which he looks at the world. The question "Hello world, what are you giving me today?" is central to the painting and conveys the daily expectation of new wonders that a child feels. This work invites the viewer to renew their own perception through the eyes of a child and to look at the world with openness and wonder. The portrait emphasizes that adults should also retain this childlike curiosity in order to fully appreciate the daily gifts of life. The painting technique and the use of color underline the message of the work through the vivid expression and the intensity of the gaze.
