

Ulla Kutter: Picture "Blue Hour" (2021)

With this picture Ulla Kutter managed to capture this special atmosphere of the early evening in the city. You can see an everyday corner in Hamburg with two traffic lights and two scooter drivers. A Telekom advertisement is included in the picture, although many a painter might not have included this element. For Kutter, however, the ubiquitous advertising belongs to an honest cityscape. Visually, the themes are the color blue and the number two. The special mood and extreme luminosity of the painting was achieved by partial underpainting in blue. At certain elements of the picture the underpainting is missing, so at the traffic lights, car headlights and the lower edge of the advertisement. Here is the viewer of the painting has the impression that it is "light on".
