

Michael Rofka: Picture "Yellow third" (2021)

€4,000.00

In European classical music, there are minor and major thirds that underlie minor and major harmonies, respectively. The artist leaves it to the viewer of this work, whether it can be assigned. In any case, the number of the three yellow-orange squares lying inside each other has something to do with a third. It is a work of the so-called color field painting, in which the expressiveness of the colors are pictorial content. Here the artist has created with this work in numerous layers of color a bright, sunny, intense color experience that creates a warm atmosphere in any room. It is pleasant to look at without being merely decorative. It has no frame and does not need one.
